ABSTRACT

This directory of library instruction programs in 102 libraries adds information on in-house developed library instruction materials to the basic information on programs, program content, and instructional personnel listed in the previous edition. Survey information gathered for the directory provides statistical data on the form of library instruction, the use of print and nonprint materials, subject areas specifically addressed at each institution, and responses to questions regarding the administration and organization of library instruction. The responses are summarized in an alphabetical listing of institutions. Following the alphabetical listing is an index by questionnaire topics. (RAA)

INTRODUCTION

The College and Research Libraries Division of the Pennsylvania Library Association conducted a survey of library instruction programs in Pennsylvania academic libraries in 1975, compiled by Sara Lou Whilden of Pennsylvania State University. The purpose of the survey was to identify those libraries which were involved in library instruction, the content of their programs; the persons responsible for instruction.

Recognizing the need for an updating of this directory, which was the result of the above mentioned survey, another survey took place during the early months of 1980. This survey, in addition, attempted to locate items produced in-house which that particular library felt it would be willing to send to a Pennsylvania Library Association clearinghouse for library instruction when such a clearinghouse is formed.

Believing that professionals involved in library instruction throughout the state would benefit from a revision of the earlier directory, this directory, too, is the product of a survey and presents the information collected.

The survey was conducted using a written questionnaire which was mailed to 164 academic libraries listed in the DIRECTORY of PENNSYLVANIA LIBRARY RESOURCES. Of the 103 responding libraries, 60 serve institutions that are privately supported; 43 institutions that are publicly supported. Sixty-nine libraries reported enrollments of less than 2000; 30 of 2,000 - 10,000; and 4 of over 20,000. Twenty one libraries support two year college programs; 37 support four year undergraduate programs; 36 support both graduate and undergraduate programs; 7 support graduate and professional programs only.

One hundred and two of the reporting libraries indicated they are involved in some form of library instruction. Eighty-three libraries provided conducted tours; 20 have printed self-guided tours; 4 have cassette self-guided tours; 15 have slide-tape, film or videotape tours. Twenty-five libraries offer some form of self-instruction; of these, 4 have programmed materials; 13 have exercises; 8 identified some other form of printed materials as self-instructive, such as manuals or work books. All libraries employ some point-of-use instruction; 37 using print materials; 15 using non-print materials. Eighty-one libraries provide lectures to classes; 22 have formal courses in library use; 27 offer term paper clinics.

Print materials are used for library instruction in all responding libraries except four. Fifty-three libraries indicated they use subject bibliographies; 36 subject guides; 66 guides to tools; 33 exercises or assignments; 58 student or faculty handbooks; 4 programmed materials; 8 texts or manuals. Thirty libraries use no non-print materials. This survey showed the following breakdown in the use of non-print materials; 2 use films; 9 filmstrips; 1 television; 10 videotapes; 12 audiotapes or cassettes; 26 transparencies; 8 slides only; 24 slide-tapes; and 4 computers.

When asked in what subject areas instruction is currently given, many libraries did not answer specifically. For those that did specify subject areas, the frequency of subjects listed is as follows: English (40); education (19); biology (13); business (10); nursing (8); psychology (11); chemistry (5); social science, art, engineering (4); philosophy, government, health, library science (3); religion, journalism, goegraphy, reading, special education, physical education, science,art history, art education, humanities, recreation, (2); physical science, data processing criminology, bibliotherapy, public administration, urban and rural planning, educational psychology, folklore, theatre, theology (1).

The responses to questions regarding the administration and organization of library instruction allow the most room for interpretation. While it is difficult to summarize this data, a few observations can be made. With regard to personnel policy and practices, 30 libraries include library instruction activity in the written job descriptions for those involved; 28 have special qualifications for librarians involved in instruction; 14 have special procedures for evaluating their performance. In no responding library are any personnel devoting full time to instruction; all have some other responsibility. With regard to program planning and evaluation, 28 libraries have an established procedure to assess need for instruction; 22 indicated there had been some evaluation of their program; estimates of enrollment reached ranged from 2 to 100 percent. No reporting library has an identifiable fund for library instruction, although a few indicated they could probably arrive at an estimate figure. Eleven libraries engage in some cooperative instructional activity with other libraries.

The data which has been summarized above is described in the attached directory of programs which is an alphabetical listing of responding institutions. The description of each follows the information provided on the questionnaire. At the end of the aphalbetical listing is a selective index of questionnaire topics. Index entries are not included for frequently listed items such as conducted tours, lectures to classes, handbooks, subject bibliographies, subject guides and guides to tools.

The College and Research Libraries Division Academic Library Instruction Committee appreciates the cooperation of the libraries participating in this survey.
